

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Brown Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for if I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains.

A friend who is a nurse said for me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home."—Mrs. W. C. Brown, 1109 Auburn Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Early Monday evening while Mr. and Mrs. J. Taylor Douglas were at a moving picture show, their home at 26 Bellevue place, New London, was visited by a sneak thief, who took two gold watches, both the property of Mrs. Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas left the theatre for home about 9 o'clock. They found nothing to indicate that the house had been broken into and it was not until some time after their arrival home that they discovered the loss of the watches.

Tuesday morning the police were notified and Officer James C. Sullivan was assigned to the case. A window had been opened and it is supposed that the thief entered through that window, although there were no marks on the window or on the wall of the room beneath the window. There was burnt matches on the floor where the thief had used them in his search.

Both watches were taken from Mrs. Douglas's room. One was monogrammed with her initials, L. S. D., and was the gift of her husband; the other was a present from her mother, the late Mrs. Clayton B. Smith. It was because of these associations that Mrs. Douglas valued the watches and feels the loss more keenly than as though they had intrinsic value only.

Y. M. C. A. Building Accepted.
The new Y. M. C. A. building, recently completed at New London, was formally turned over by the building committee to the trustees at a meeting held Monday morning. The final details connected with construction were completed by the committee and their work was officially terminated.

Miss Marjorie Cheney of South Manchester will discuss the situation relative to the public care of children under four years of age and Rev. F. John T. Ryan of Hartford, will discuss the situation relative to the care of children under four years of age, taking St. Agnes home as an illustration. This will be in the section given over to subjects relating to children and their care. In the Round Table discussion of the section given over to the family and the community there will be a discussion relative to organized charity work and also concerning the establishment of juvenile courts in Connecticut as well as improvement in the non support and desertion laws. General Secretary Francis H. McLean of the American Association of Societies for organizing charity, will lead in this discussion and will be followed by Mrs. Rosemary Anderson of New London.

In the Round Table discussion in the section given over to correctional work there will be a discussion of "Treatment of Inebriety" by Probate Judge L. P. Waldo, of Hartford, and Police Court Judge E. L. Steele of the same city will discuss "The County Jail System." There will also be a Round Table section on mental defects.

Tuesday's general session will open at 10:45 o'clock in charge of the committee on mental defects of which Dr. Henry H. Pollock, Supt. of the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane, is chairman. Dr. Pollock will make the introductory remarks and Dr. Charles T. LaMoore, Supt. of the Connecticut School for Epileptics at Mansfield, will speak on "The Care of the Mentally Defective Epileptics." Dr. C. T. Haviland, Supt. of The Connecticut Hospital for the Insane at Middletown, will speak on "The Care of the Insane."

There will be a general session at 2:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with the committee on reformatory and correctional work in charge. Charles H. ANNUAL MEETING OF BOROUGH OF GROTON.
Six Minute Session Presided Over by Warden C. Tyler Landphers.

The annual meeting of the borough of Groton was held Monday evening and was the shortest as well as the most amicable on record.

It occupied the whole of six minutes. Warden C. Tyler Landphers called the meeting to order at 7:30 and Clerk Leon Brogan read the call which asked only for the acceptance of the borough report. There were no resolutions and no call for money to be expended.

Jerry Sullivan immediately moved that the report be accepted and it was seconded. On calling for remarks James Brown, former engineer at the water and light plant offered an objection on the ground that the report was illegal and a libel. It looked as if something was started but it was merely a flash in the pan.

He offered a paper which he asked that the clerk read. He was told by Mr. Landphers to read it himself and did so. It consisted of a "round-robin" stating in the main that Mr. Brown had not attempted to call a strike of the workmen at the plant when so many of them left following his discharge last winter.

Not a word greeted the reading of the paper and the vote for the acceptance of the report went through without a voice.

Mr. Sullivan then asked the warden if he could tell him the cost of the construction of the sewer for the borough and was given the figures. With varying amounts for the years 1913, 1914, 1915 the amount totals $89,801.15.

A motion to adjourn was made and immediately seconded and the meeting was closed.

British Answer On Neutral Trade

exercise of belligerent rights at sea, however reasonably exercised, must be convenient to neutral trade and great pressure is being put upon the United States government to urge the technical theory that there should be no interference at all with goods passing between neutral ports and thus to frustrate the measures which the allies have taken to intercept commerce on its way to or from the enemy.

Cites Civil War Action.

The note refers to the action taken by the United States during the Civil war to stop such a trade and to the supreme court's doctrine of continuous voyage given to cover all cases where there was an intention to thwart the blockade by "whatever means, direct or indirect."

Bonafide Neutral Commerce.

"His Majesty's government desires to assure the United States government," the note continues, "that every effort is being made to distinguish between bonafide neutral commerce and that which really is intended for the enemy. The task is one of exceptional difficulty, and the statistics show that a great volume of imports intended for the enemy must have passed through adjacent neutral countries through the war."

Growth of Imports of Lard Into Sweden.

As an instance the imports of lard into Sweden during the year 1915 may be taken. In that year the total import of lard into Sweden from all sources was 9,318 tons, of which no less than 3,029 tons came from the United States. In the three years before the war the average annual import of the same article was only 885 tons, of which 628 came from the United States. It is difficult to believe that the requirements of Sweden in respect of lard even when every allowance is made for possible diversions of trade due to the war could suddenly have increased more than ten fold in 1915. The inference indeed is irresistible that the greater part of these imports must have had another and an enemy destination.

Effectiveness of the Blockade. The note argues at length to justify the effectiveness of the blockade.

tify the effectiveness of the blockade and contends that the passage of commerce to a blockaded area across land frontier or across an inland sea never has been held to interfere with the effectiveness of a blockade.

Objects Have Been Achieved

"The objects with which the usual declaration and notification of blockade are issued," says the note, "have been fully achieved. Again, the effectiveness of work of the allied fleets under the orders referred to is shown by the small number of vessels which escape the allied patrols. It is doubtful whether there ever has been a blockade where the ships which slipped through bore so small a proportion to those which were intercepted. * * * The best proof of a thoroughness of a blockade is to be found in its results. * * * The great rise in price in Germany of many articles most necessary to the enemy in the prosecution of the present war must be well known to the United States government."

Cotton Used for Military Purposes.

The putting of cotton on the contraband list, the note says, was forced by the accumulation of evidence that it was being used only for military purposes in Germany and that its use for other purposes was prohibited.

To the American contention that "the curtailment of neutral rights by these measures which are admittedly retaliatory and therefore illegal cannot be admitted," the note replies, "Although these measures may have been provoked by the illegal conduct of the enemy they do not in reality conflict with any general principle of international law, of humanity or of civilization; they are enforced with consideration against neutral countries and are therefore judicially sound and valid."

"Finally, His Majesty's government desires to assure the United States government that they will continue their efforts to make the exercise of what they conceive to be their belligerent rights as little burdensome to neutrals as possible."

Then, referring to steps taken to expedite examination of ships and cargoes, the note says: "It is to such mitigations that the allies and the neutrals concerned should look for the removal of difficulties now encountered rather than to abrupt changes either in the theory or application of a policy based upon admitted principles of international law, carefully adjusted to the altered conditions of modern warfare."

The note is about 12,000 words long and contains some appendices and a statement from the French minister of marine sustaining the views expressed by Admiral Jellicoe.
